

SILVER!

NOW A UNITED STATES "CRITICAL" MINERAL

THE NEW ORLEANS LEGACY SERIES

For generations, collectors have searched for New Orleans–minted coins because they represent far more than precious metal. Each "O" mint coin is a tangible reminder of one of America's most historic branch mints—a legacy that spans antebellum commerce, the Civil War, Reconstruction, and the resurgence of American coinage.

Millions of these impressive silver dollars were damaged or worn out in circulation, and untold quantities were ruthlessly melted in later years for their precious silver content, making these silver dollars one of the most coveted issues today.

CELEBRATE AMERICAS

250TH ANNIVERSARY

WITH THESE PATRIOTIC SILVER ROUNDS

SILVER, A UNITED STATES CRITICAL MINERAL

Now that silver has been officially added as a United States Critical Mineral, it is now the most important mineral for national security. Silver's unmatched conductivity for industrial use has exploded in recent years. Due to its high demand, silver is already experiencing supply constraints and annual production has been running at a deficit for the past six years. Silver is essential for national security, and unlike gold, it is being destroyed in industrial applications, never to return. If you don't own physical silver yet, it's not too late, but that window is closing. These patriotic silver rounds are a great way to do it, struck in one of the scarcest precious metals on the planet, now is the time to act!
